

North Seattle Veterinary Clinic | 11032 8th Avenue NE | Seattle, WA 98125 | 206-523-7187 | info@northseattlevet.com

POSSIBLE HOUSEHOLD DANGERS TO YOUR PET

Foods:

Some foods we eat can be toxic to pets, even in small amounts. These include:

- Chocolate
- Bread dough
- Grapes
- Fatty foods (like bacon or grease)
- Raisins
- Coffee grounds
- Garlic
- Avocado pits
- Onions, chives
- Xylitol (found in sugar-free gum)
- Macadamia nuts
- Medications (human and pet – keep out of reach!)

Household items:

There are some household items that can routinely be a problem for dogs and cats. You might be surprised to learn that pets regularly eat them!

- Electrical cords
- Yarn, string and ribbon
- Socks and underwear
- Adhesives (like Gorilla Glue)
- Batteries & coins
- Hair ties
- Rat and insect bait
- Antifreeze

Common Household and garden plants:

Some common plants that we keep in our houses or gardens can be toxic to pets.

- Lilies (deadly toxic to cats)
- Foxglove
- Tulips
- Yew
- Rhododendron
- Corn Plant
- Azalea
- Ribbon Plant
- Oleander
- Castor bean

For more information, including a more complete list of all toxic plants visit:

www.asPCA.org/pet-care/animal-poison-control

For a possible toxicity emergency call ASPCA Animal Poison Control: (888) 426-4435